

Virtual classroom for education providers

Foroso Communications and e/t/s didactic media jointly support professional education

Munich, December 1, 2003 – e/t/s didactic media, leading German vendor of eLearning offerings for education providers now offers the Foroso Training Center to its customers. Foroso's virtual classroom was integrated with the e/t/s-eLearning platform DLS.

With her eLearning platform DLS (Distance Learning System), e/t/s didactic media is well established in the segment of education providers and organizers. More than 150 online eLearning platforms are used by a wide variety of private and public organizations.

„As leading vendor of Real-Time Collaboration products we are very interested in partnerships with solution providers“, states Franz Buchenberger, President and CEO of Foroso Communications. „e/t/s is a new partner that has gained a good reputation through decades of experience with learning solutions.“

„With Foroso we have found a partner for a close development cooperation that ideally extends our eLearning management system DLS Distance Learning System through real-time components. Especially the operation without client software installation enables the participants to easily use the product“, says Bernhard Karrasch, CEO of e/t/s didactic media.
