

Three new managers in key roles

Foroso Communications expands its management team with experienced experts

Munich, May 05, 2002 – Foroso Communications adds three experienced managers for key areas. Elmar Merget as Chief Operating Officer is in charge of all technical and administrative aspects. Kristof Nast-Kolb is newly appointed as VP Professional Services and takes care of all customer service activities. Peter Pock as VP Engineering is responsible for all product development at Foroso.

Foroso Communications, a leading vendor of Real-Time Enterprise Collaboration products expands its management team with several experienced experts.

Elmar Merget as Chief Operating Officer is responsible for all technical and administrative issues. Thus, Foroso's CEO Franz Buchenberger can focus on sales and marketing activities. Prior to Foroso, Mr. Merget was three years VP Engineering at blaxxun interactive AG. Prior to that, he was CEO of Softwaresystem Merget GmbH. Before that, he worked ten years at software houses AKM and Softlab/BMW.

As VP Professional Services, Kristof Nast-Kolb will lead all customer service activities, including consulting, system integration support, and technical support. After his degree in computer science, Mr. Nast-Kolb was six years at BMW subsidiary Softlab and six years at blaxxun interactive. He gained extensive international experience through several years in the US and work with customers in Europe and Asia.

Peter Pock is as new VP Engineering responsible for Foroso's product development. During the eleven years after his university degree, Mr. Pock was in charge of various large engineering projects at Softlab and blaxxun. His special expert areas are collaborative technologies.

With these additions, Foroso has now an experienced management team where each member has more than ten years background in international product development and marketing.
