

Three new products available for customers

Foroso Communications releases first products

Munich, July 8, 2002 – As of today, Foroso Communications releases three new products. These are Foroso Communication Center™ for Corporate Communication, Foroso Meeting Center™ for eMeetings, and Foroso Training Center™ for eTraining. The most important attribute of Foroso's products is an extraordinary simplicity of use.

Foroso Communications, vendor of Real-Time Enterprise Collaboration technologies, released today three new products.

Foroso Communication Center™ supports external and company internal presentations. This includes corporate communication, company presentations, and conferences. Human resource departments can effectively communicate with employees and receive instant feedback. Marketing managers can present their products and services to their internal and external audiences and respond immediately to upcoming questions. Company meetings and international conferences bring advantages through a technology that can easily be used by non-technical participants and organizers.

Foroso Meeting Center™ is targeted at online meetings. A typical scenario is a team that work on an offer for a customer. Joint creation of marketing materials for a product launch is another example that can be made more efficient. Coordination of a new insurance or banking product across several locations can be supported very well. Foroso Meeting Center™ can substitute many expensive physical meetings and speed up processes.

Foroso Training Center™ adds interactivity to training content. Content can be as simple as a set of Powerpoint slides or be imported from sophisticated Learning Management systems. Foroso Training Center™ supports the management of training content, administration of students and their access rights, real-time training with a variety of team features, asynchronous capabilities, as well as a sophisticated backend for training management.

Foroso's products were designed for extreme ease of use. Users are not required to install any software. All functions are clear and intuitive. There are no firewall issues. Integration with 3rd party products is simple and straightforward.

“We know that real-time collaboration will greatly help our customers to save cost and to increase efficiency”, says Franz Buchenberger, CEO and President of Foroso. “But in order to achieve this, we need to make it easy for users to adopt new technologies and processes. Thus, simplicity is our key priority”.
