

Foroso Communications and digital spirit announce new cooperation

Munich, July 7, 2003 – Foroso Communications and digital spirit announce their cooperation regarding solutions for e-Learning. digital spirit will provide her customers with Foroso's Virtual Classroom as an effective and easy to use solution.

digital spirit is a leading solution provider for the German eLearning market. With six locations, digital spirit can offer to her customers an extensive range of topic experience, local service, flexibility, and competence. The offering includes consulting, creation of learning content, selection and implementation of infrastructure, and all related services. digital spirit serves a variety of prestigious customers, such as BMW, Deutsche Bahn, Daimler Chrysler, Deutsche Lufthansa, KPMG, METRO, and Novartis.

To meet the increasing demand for Virtual Classroom solutions, digital spirit entered now into a partnership with Foroso Communications. Foroso is a German software house that focuses exclusively on Virtual Classroom and eMeeting products. Software development is done in Germany and the resulting products are marketed primarily through partners, such as digital spirit. Foroso provides her technology based on the latest technical standards and differentiates its products through unique ease of use, extensive features, and high economic value for customers.

“It is important for our customers, that new technologies are easy to understand, to use, and to integrate“, states Thomas Wölker, Head of Sales at digital spirit. „Foroso's Virtual Classroom excites us and our customers, because it becomes immediately clear how it can generate value.“

„Each partnership with an established and competent partner gets us closer to our short-term objective to be the leading provider of eMeeting products in the German-speaking countries,“ says Franz Buchenberger,

President and CEO of Foroso Communications. „On this path, digital spirit is an important partner for us.“
